YOUR DESTINATION – Hanoi

The former « city of the rising dragon » became the official capital of Vietnam in 1954. The war against the United States got the better of tourism until the early 90's, a time when Hanoi became again a capital city opened to the rest of the world.

The irresistible charm of the capital, at the crossroad between tradition and modernism, is best discovered through the lakes, green parks and shopping lanes. The historic heart of the city is located around the Hoan Kiem lake, where Asian and European influences mix daily.

Trade is flourishing while ancestral traditions are carried on in ancient charming districts with interlaced little streets named from their corporation : Hang Gai street (Silk street), Hang Bac (Silver and goldsmithery street)...

YOUR DESTINATION – Halong Bay

One cannot travel to Vietnam without visiting Halong Bay, a globally famous symbol of Vietnam. Located in the Tonkin Gulf, it comprises some 1900 islands and islets creating a spectacular marine landscape of limestone pillars, which led to it being listed a UNESCO World Heritage site in 1994.

The legend says that the Karstic islets were created when a legendary dragon wagged his tail in order to defend Vietnam against Chinese invaders.

The islands of the bay are inaccessible and protected, and only inhabited by animals. As for the people, they have elected to live in floating villages. Here, it is hard to say whether the sea has invaded the mountain or whether the mountains are springing out of the sea. Nevertheless, the place retains a mysterious charm and offers one of the most striking memories from a trip to Vietnam.

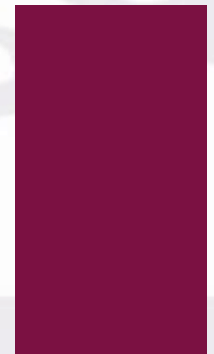

YOUR DESTINATION – Ho-Chi-Minh-City (Saigon)

Ho Chi Minh City, formerly called Saigon, is the most populous, modern and lively city in Vietnam. Truly the economic heart of the country, it undoubtedly attracts entrepreneurs of all kinds and each year, new skyscrapers spring up on the skyline.

Because of its strategic position close to the Delta and at the meeting point between Cambodia and Laos, it has always been a very commercial city, nicknamed “Vietnam’s shopping centre”. You will be able to find anything, and often cheaper than anywhere else.

RELIVE 1950'S HANOI ON A CYCLO--POUSSE

Experience the life of a Hanoi inhabitant in the 1950's and travel through the old quarter on a cyclo-pousse (cycle rickshaw) for 45mn.

Discover the bustling streets of the “Quarter of the 36 guilds” – a place of unique charm and endless activity: artisans, stalls, tinsmiths, jewellers, calligraphers, carpenters, mobile stalls, leather or rattan goods, not forgetting the people selling fans, votive objects, lacquers, silks, mats, paper, pipes, etc.

This cycle rickshaw 'stroll' is therefore a pleasant moment of relaxation and discovery.

ACTIVITY -HANOI

HOAN KIEM LAKE AND NGOC SON TEMPLE TOUR

Hoan Kiem Lake is located at the heart of the city of Hanoi and is the symbol of the city. Whatever the weather, from 5:30am to 10pm, Hanoian life moves and is organized around it. People come here to do their morning exercise, chat with their friends, or even share a fishing trip with their pals.

Then, walk across the majestic red wood bridge, officially named the Bridge of the rising sun, to reach the small Ngoc Son temple (Temple of the Jade mountain), standing on an enticing islet connected to the banks of Hoan Kiem Lake. If you have not had the chance to catch a glimpse of the extremely rare giant turtle, which now lives in the jade waters of Hoan Kiem Lake, you may still admire the mummified one, measuring 2.10 meters, and lying at rest inside the temple.
